

Baseball magnates have changed the childhood game of "button, button, whose got the button?" to "star, star, whose got a star—to trade?"

Trading star players is a popular diversion to cork-pulling for the magnates in annual session. It relieves the monotony and shows the players where they stand.

On top of electing Gov. Tener president, the National League swapped everything but its eye teeth—which are just being cut—and its franchise.

Garry Herrman started by selling

AT LEFT,
"SPEEDY BOB"
BESCHER.

THE MAN AT BAT IS ED
KONETCHY.

BELOW
KONETCHY IS
CHAS. HERZOG.

AT RIGHT,
JOE TINKER,
HIGHEST-PRICED
BALLPLAYER
BASEBALL HAS PRODUCED.